

Figure 1Figure 2

Emery Teichelman
Application # 10/043063

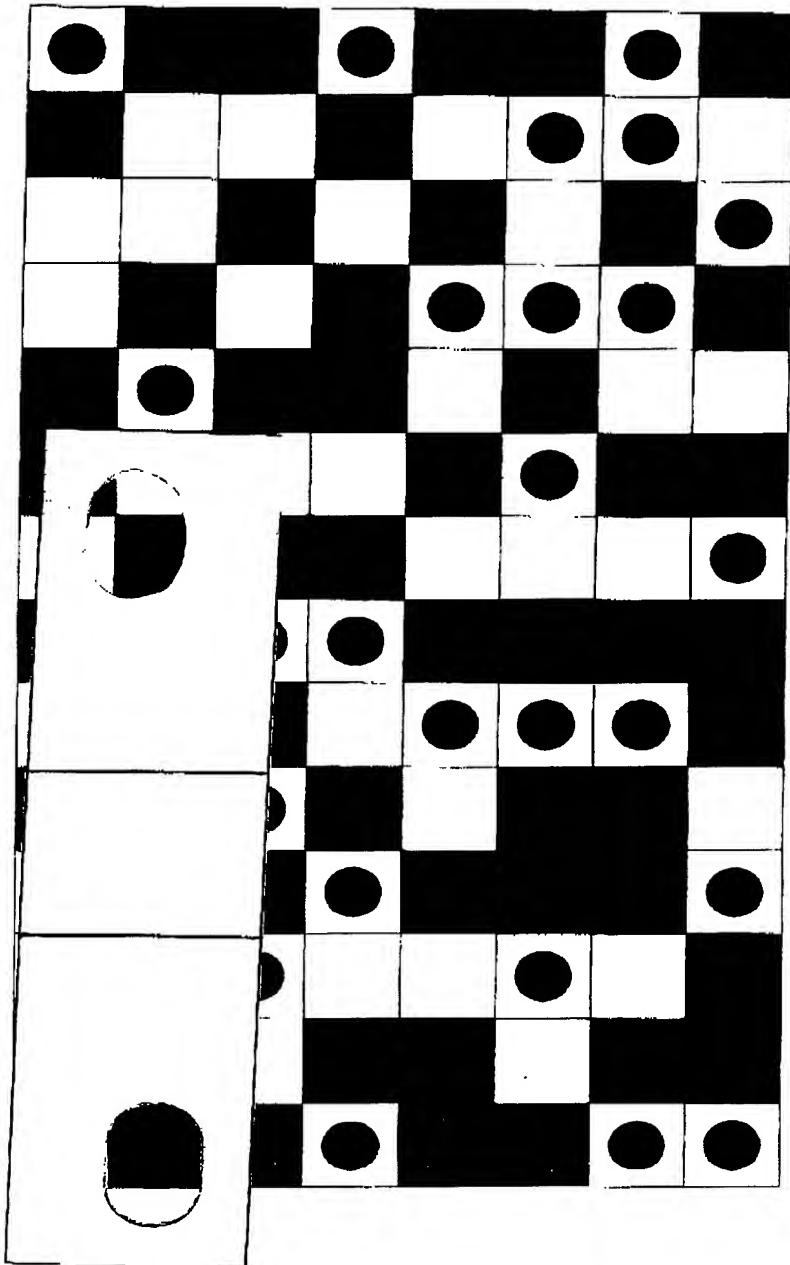

Figure 3

22

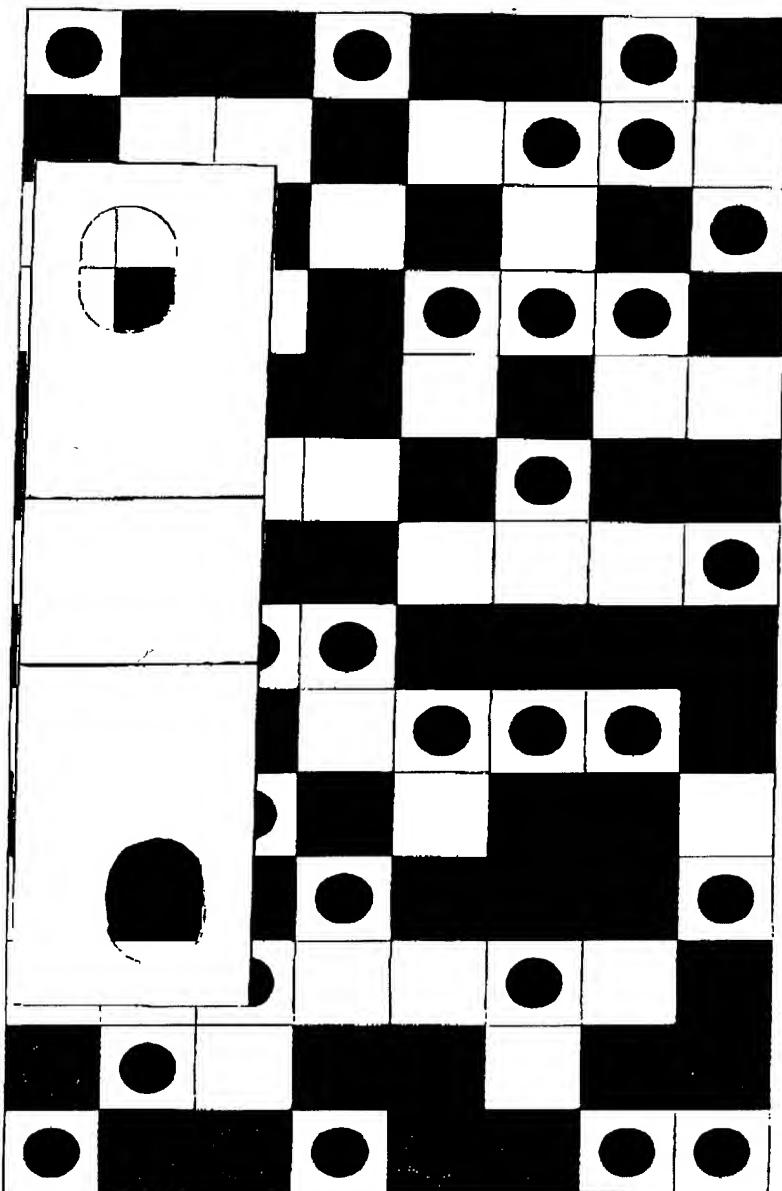

Emery Teichelman
Application # 10/043063

Figure 4

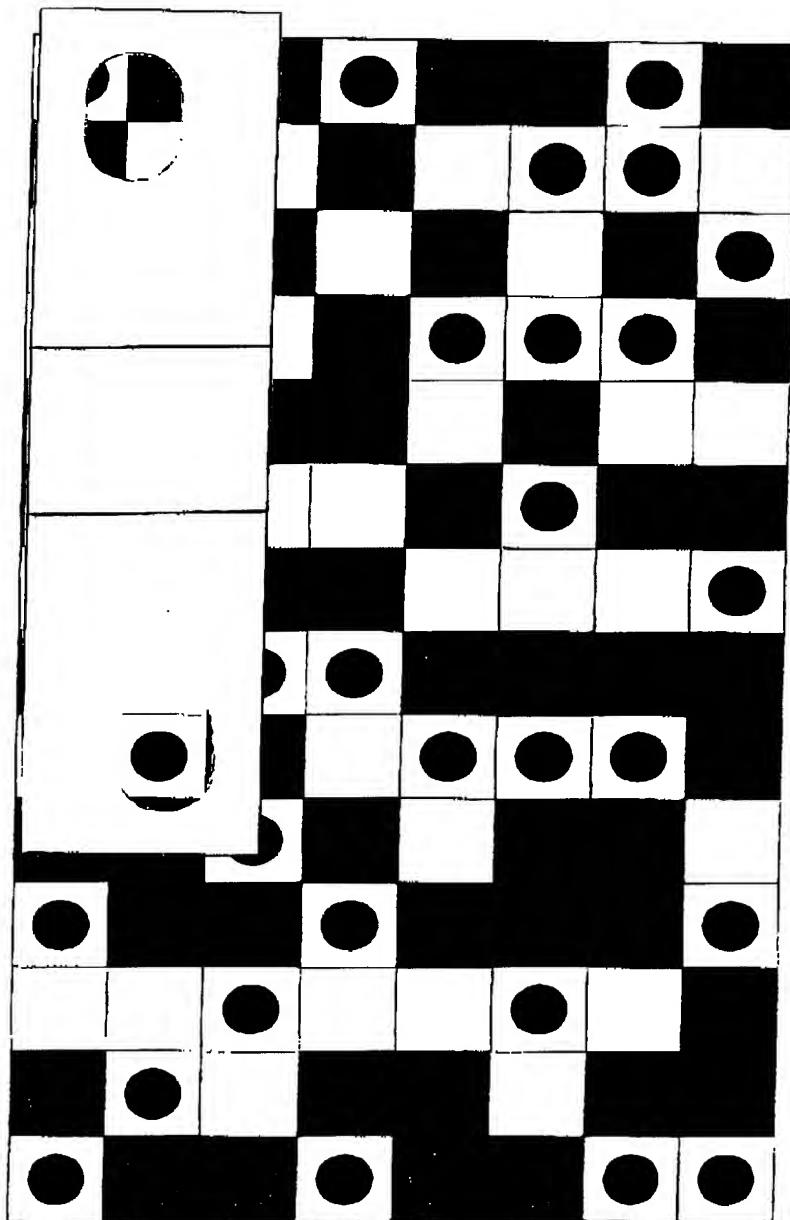

Emery C. Teichelman
Application # 10/043063

Figure 5

Emery C. Teichelman
Application # 10/043063

Figure 6

Emery C. Teichelman
Application # 10/043063

Figure 7

Parkinson's Facts

In Parkinson's disease, there is not enough dopamine to keep balance with the acetylcholine. The result of this imbalance is a lack of coordination of your movement that often appears as tremor, stiff muscles and joints, and/or difficulty moving.

Currently, there is no way to stop then loss of nerve cells that produce dopamine. However, there is a new therapy which can help you.

Parkinson's disease.

Figure 8

Parkinson's Facts

In Parkinson's disease, there is not enough dopamine to keep balance with the acetylcholine. The result of this imbalance is a lack of coordination of your movement that often appears as tremor, stiff muscles and joints, and/or difficulty moving.

Currently, there is no way to stop then loss of nerve cells that produce dopamine. However, there are some treatments that can help you manage the symptoms that occur with Parkinson's disease.

Figure 9

Parkinson's Facts

In Parkinson's disease, there is not enough dopamine to keep balance with the acetylcholine. The result of this imbalance is a lack of coordination of your movement that often appears as tremor, stiff muscles and joints, and/or difficulty moving.

Currently, there is no way to stop the loss of nerve cells that produce dopamine. However, there are several ways to help you manage Parkinson's disease.